A History of Madison/Teejop

T 1:20 PM - 3:15 PM

Professor Stephen Kantrowitz

"Where do you call home?" When we ask people this question, we are showing them that we want to find out about their lives and are interested in what we have in common. But this question can also be a way of asking what histories have shaped our communities, our families, and ourselves. This semester, we will explore "Where do you call home?" as a historical question, in part through our own biographies, and in part by asking what it means that we are all also now "from" Madison a place also known, for countless generations and today, as Teejop (Four Lakes), part of the ancestral homeland of the Ho-Chunk people.

This is a High Impact Practice course reserved for students in CAE, CeO, Posse, PEOPLE, and All-in Milwaukee
